

COVID-19: Is it safe being at Work?

COVID-19 is a public health emergency. Everyone needs to assess and manage the risks and businesses should consider the risks to their workers and visitors. As a Pharmaceutical Industry employer, I was aware of the risks that working with too many people and in small spaces could bring. So, mostly, I work remotely but, for some projects, I do need to be present in the factory. This was not an insurmountable problem: body temperature readings, safety guidelines affixed in all spaces and permanently wearing a mask for protection all helped keep me safe throughout the day. All the time I was there I felt secure and safe. Of course, it's our duty to take legal responsibility to protect others from risk to their health and safety.

Cláudia Rodrigues

Implementation Consultant